Federal law requires students receiving federal student aid to maintain Satisfactory Academic Progress (SAP). Satisfactory Academic Progress standards are different from the regulations governing academic probation and suspension. Please read the following carefully:

- Federal law requires that the student demonstrate mitigating circumstances. Mitigating circumstances are those that have an effect upon the student’s academic performance, were substantially beyond the student’s control, and whose occurrence would not likely be repeated.
- Students must be advised that submitting an appeal for reinstatement of financial aid and supporting documentation does not guarantee that an appeal will be granted by the Office of Financial Aid.
- Students who have used financial aid to complete their minimum payment for a subsequent enrollment period and who have had their appeals denied by the Office of Financial Aid will lose any financial aid awarded to them until they meet the criteria to have financial aid eligibility reinstated. These students must contact the Business Services Office to arrange payment for their continued enrollment in classes.
- An appeal and supporting documentation needs to be filed by the appeal processing priority deadline, which is 7 business days prior to the beginning of the semester. The priority deadline is established to ensure the Office of Financial Aid can process the appeal in time for the student to withdraw from classes without financial penalty if the appeal is denied.
- Financial aid appeals that do not include supporting documentation or appeals based on reasons other than those outlined in this document will be denied without further consideration.
- If this appeal is approved and your financial aid is reinstated, it will not be retroactive for any terms when these standards were not met. If approved, you must maintain satisfactory academic progress.
